

Thousand Voices

One song, a thousand voices
One tongue for all of man
All of creation sings your praise
The stones beneath me groan in Glorious worship of
The day the maker came to save

*And I will join in with the music
I will sing the sky blue
All of Earth is a poem written to you
I will march the rhythm
Of the heartbeat you have placed
Into this living, breathing, beautiful rock in space*

Lofty mountain grandeur
Tells me of your face
The wind is whispering of your grace
Streams burbling with laughter
Delighting in your love
Your life drips from the dew, explodes from the clouds above

*And I will join in with the music
I will sing the sky blue
All of Earth is a poem written to you
I will march the rhythm
Of the heartbeat you have placed
Into this living, breathing, beautiful rock in space
Into this living, breathing, glorious, wonderful, beautiful rock in space*

Copyright © 2009 Rose Grigg